BIG TRUCK LOAD OF RUM CAPTURED BY LEE OFFICERS

Shipment, Hidden Under Potatoes, Seized Sunday Morn

Dominico Belle of LaSalle was arrested Sunday morning about 9:30 by deputies from Sheriff Fred A. Richardson's office about six miles south of Rochelle in Lee county on state highway, route 70, with a load of 634 gallons of alcohol which was disguised to appear as a truck load of potatoes. About 15 bushels of tubers were scattered on top of the load of gallon tins, which was going south of the highway.

Deputies suspected the driver of hauling something else besides potatoes from the appearance of the heavily laden truck and stopped Belle. Investigation of the load disclosed gallon tins in burlap bags which were covered over with potatoes. Belle and his cargo were brought to the county jail at Dixon where a search warrant was obtained from Justice J. O. Shaulis and the load of alcohol transferred to a cell. Belle was held under bonds of $3,000 on charges of possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor and was to be taken into the County Court on an information this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Belle is said to have placed a $100 bill in the coat pocket of one of the deputies who halted him, promising that this amount and much more would be forthcoming in the event that the load would be permitted to continue to its destination in LaSalle county. The alleged offer had no effect and the cargo of New Year cheer was brought to Dixon. Belle told the deputies that he had taken the load from Beloit, Wis., to deliver it to a point in LaSalle county. It was the first large consignment of liquor that has been seized by Lee county officers since Sheriff Fred Richardson took up his duties one year ago.

ASKS EXPULSION FROM MEXICO OF MOST. REV. DIAZ

An Anti-Clerical Law Will Be Put Into Effect Tuesday

Mexico City, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The increasing gravity of the situation growing out of the Virgin of Guadalupe celebration here December 12 was reflected today in a request for the expulsion of the most Rev. Pascual Diaz, Archbishop of Mexico, who was instrumental in helping arrange the church-state agreement of June, 1929, which restored religious peace to the country.

The request was contained in a message to President Ortiz Rubio from Manlio Fabio Altamirano, leading anti-clerical Senator of Vera Cruz where the Catholic church has suspended all activities following passage of a law restricting it to one priest for each 100,000 inhabitants.

The Senator declared in the Senate last week that the Mexican revolution should suppress all religious orders and drive all priests out of Mexico.

His letter followed an open letter to the President from Archbishop Diaz protesting against passage of an anti-clerical law here which would limit the Catholic church to one priest and one church for each 50,000 inhabitants.

Although the President has not indicated his position, it has been semi-officially announced by the newspaper El Nacional, organ of the National Revolutionary party, that the law will be published and become effective tomorrow.

Southern Floods Growing More Serious

WELFARE FUND GROWS SLOWLY: IS OVER QUOTA

Committee Pleased As Increased Need Is Realized

Contributions to the Dixon Welfare Fund, received over the week end, totaled $466 and brought the grand total subscribed or pledged to $11,254.65 — every penny of which will be needed to care for Dixon's unemployed and their families even with the strictest economy on the part of the committee.

The members of the association who know the conditions, realize that the requirement to properly care for the needy will exceed the minimum of $10,000 originally estimated, and they are glad the contributions are still coming in and are hopeful they will continue.

Contributions of $300 by the Brown Shoe Co., $50 by its employees, $50 by Montgomery Ward & Co., and $25 by W. H. Ware, figured largely in making today's total of $466. Contributors to the fund to date are:

Resume Airing Of Ky. Labor Troubles

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Dec. 28.—(UP)—Labor troubles of Kentucky's south-eastern coal mines were brought into court here again today with fresh disorders under dispute.

William M. Hightower, president of the Evans, Ky., local, United Mine Workers of America, faced trial on charges of conspiracy to murder in connection with a fatal ambush of deputy sheriffs last spring.

W. B. Jones, secretary of the same local, who was sentenced to life imprisonment on similar charges two weeks ago, prepared an appeal for a new trial before Judge H. C. Brewitt in Montgomery Circuit Court.

Meanwhile, 24 hours after a tepid slain at Chevrolet, Ky., in an altercation with members of the National Miners' Union, 300 members of the same organization met at Wallin's Creek, near Harlan, to discuss a strike called for Jan. 1.

ROOSTERS CROW OVER RAIN

PACIFIC STATES SWEEP BY RAIN AND WIND STORM

Lowlands Threatened By Floods: Record Of Years Broken

San Francisco, Dec. 28.—(UP)—A driving wind and rain storm swept out of the North Pacific today bringing snows to mountain regions, shattering weather records of 20 years and threatening floods to lowlands.

The storm spent its fury across four states, lashing coast points with heavy gales, blocking transportation and swelling rivers near to flood levels.

Forecasts of lighter rainfall today and tomorrow indicated the worst of the storm was over, but prospects of more downpours caused apprehension.

The storm descended on Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada, retraced its path to Victoria, B. C., and then started southward again whipped by a 56 mile gale. Ships turned into the wind and prepared to ride it out.

Streams Are Flooded

The Sacramento river burst its banks at Chico, Calif., flooding a highway under half foot of water. Kennett, at the head of the river, received 9.88 inches of rain in 29 hours.

In Santa Cruz, Calif., struck by almost nine inches of rain, a force of 2,000 men was recruited to prevent further damage from heavy ocean breakers and rising creeks. Eight cabins at Soquel were washed away.

Houses and streets were flooded in the town of Soquel when the creek overflowed.

A series of 10 lakes, each more than a half mile long, surrounded the city of Oakland. More than 40 homes, some in fashionable districts, were threatened.

Otto Bronck, 65, dairy farm employee who refused to leave his cabin in when the Napa river began rising dangerously, was missing today and his cabin had been carried away. Edward J. Mackey, 18, Alameda, Calif., was treated in a Nevada City, Calif., hospital for freezing after losing his way in a blizzard.

Thirteen feet of snow was reported at Norden, near Donner Summit in the Sierra Nevada mountains, the deepest in 20 years. San Francisco has received 11.24 inches of rain for the season to date, as compared with 2.64 inches this time last year.

Strange Writings Found In Cavern

Jerseyville, Ill., Dec. 28.—(UP)—Writings, believed to have been inscribed centuries ago by primitive men, have been found on the walls of a cavern in a bluff in the vicinity of Grafton and near the Mississippi river.

The strange writings, which appear to be of Greek origin, were found by George Brainerd, Jerseyville, who recently explored the cavern which had been considered an old den in the rocks, the possible lair of wild animals.

Specimens of the writing have been sent to Smithsonian Institute and requests have been made to the University of Illinois to send an expert to read, if possible, the records on the cavern walls.

Fog Prevents Air Search For Flier

Marlinton, W. Va., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Fog and low hanging clouds today forced temporary suspension of an aerial search over the Blue Ridge Mountains for a missing Army flier.

Six Army planes from Selfridge Field, Mich., were unable to take off from their base at Hot Springs, Va., to aid in the search for Lieut. E. H. Bobbitt, Jr., 24. Weather conditions also prevented J. M. Gaston of the White Sulphur Springs airport from continuing his search by air.

Ground searching parties continued to tramp through the wooded mountain country. Bobbitt, missing since Friday, is believed to have come down south of Elkins. The searching parties were spurred by the posting of a $500 reward by Bobbitt's father.

River Woman Has Made Good Progress

Sulphur Springs, Mo., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Miss Randi Leroh, scrub-woman floating down the Mississippi river from St. Paul to New Orleans in a small boat, passed here this morning. She was rowing steadily and acknowledged with a hand wave the greeting of a small crowd on the river bank.

Miss Leroh left St. Louis, about 25 miles north of here yesterday. She is believed to have camped last night a few miles up the river from here.

NELSON'S TRIAL RESUMED TODAY IN M'HENRY CO.

Former Vice President Of Defunct Bank Is Witness Today

Woodstock, Ill., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Milton E. Smith, former vice president of the defunct Waukegan State Bank, testified today at State Auditor Oscar Nelson's trial for misfeasance, but had never ordered, a stock assessment to strengthen the bank.

Smith was called to the stand soon after the trial was resumed in the McHenry county Circuit Court after a holiday recess. Business managers of the two Waukegan newspapers were the first to testify and identified statements of the bank's condition published in October and December, 1930, when the state charges Nelson knew the bank was insolvent and permitted it to remain open.

Nelson, informed the Waukegan bank directors at a Chicago conference in September last year, Smith testified, that the bank held between $80,000 and $90,000 in bad loans and that its bonds had depreciated $41,000 and then recommended the assessment, salary reductions and economy to bolster it.

The assessment suggestion, however, was never carried out, Smith said, because officers of the National Bank of the Republic who held 795 shares of stock in the Waukegan bank had presented it for resale to Waukegan people.

The money was to be used to build up the bank's reserve by $120,000, but the plan failed, other witnesses have testified, because only 38 shares at $150 were actually sold.

Smith also revealed that Nelson chided William H. Miller, former vice president of the Republic bank, and Murray Connors, former vice president of the Waukegan bank, because neither had posted 10 shares of stock with the Secretary of State, a statutory requirement for bank directors.

The testimony of the two newspaper officials was regarded the opening wedge in the prosecution's attempt to prove the bank was insolvent a year ago in September. To comply with a ruling of Judge Edward Shurtleff that the bank's records were the most competent evidence of that, the records were brought to Woodstock and carried into the courtroom as the session opened. Both F. W. Just of the Waukegan News Sun, and Mrs. Grover Whitmore of the Waukegan Times, identified the bank's financial policies as they appeared in their newspapers but they were not admitted in evidence. Judge Shurtleff directed the prosecution to obtain proof of publication from the publishers, holding that the newspaper copies could not be admitted.

PRESIDENT WILL WELCOME 'CUTS' IN EXPENDITURE

Asks Only That They Do Not Impair Any Vital Function

Washington, Dec. 28.—(AP)—President Hoover has informed congressional leaders he will "welcome" any reduction in government expenditures that Congress may make.

Making only the exception that further cuts in the budget should not impair vital functions, the Chief Executive told the chairmen of the Senate and House Appropriations committees that the administration looked with favor upon any move to reduce the budget even more than the $369,000,000 slashed from departmental estimates by the Budget Bureau.

The President had before him today various phases of his economic program, upon which he will confer with leaders of Capitol Hill during the recess in an effort to expedite action.

White House officials said today that although Mr. Hoover contemplates sending several special messages to Congress they probably will be withheld until the economic program is enacted.

Among the possible messages mentioned was one on the railroad situation, another on the consolidation of government offices and departments and a third on law enforcement, already forecast by the President himself.

The law enforcement message probably will deal with revising methods to stiffen the activities against gamblers and other criminals. It will not deal directly with prohibition, it was said, except in this light.

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill there came an expression from Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, of determination to cooperate with the Democrats in reducing expenditures.

Commenting on a statement of Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, that his party would reduce budget estimates, Snell said, Rainey would find the Republicans willing to go as far as he does in cutting expenses.

Snell said that in the Democrats' program as outlined by Rainey, he noticed "they favor placing the burden on the wealthy class that is able to pay."

"At the same time I notice," he said, "they oppose making income and corporation tax retroactive. As a matter of fact if the tax increases are made retroactive it is the wealthy class and those able to pay who will have to bear the burden."

"I should think they would be in favor of making the increase retroactive for that reason."

FOUR BREAKS IN LEVEES FLOODED HUNDRED FARMS

No Lives Are Lost But Inhabitants Watch Waters Rise

Clarksdale, Miss., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The Glendora levee, against which the swollen Tallahatchie river has been beating for days, crumbled today and water began pouring into Glendora to a depth of five feet.

The business section was flooded but there was no loss of life. It was believed much of the residential section would remain safe from the onrush since it is protected by the embankment of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad.

The levee break, 20 to 25 feet wide, occurred at a point just outside the Glendora municipal limits at a point considered reasonably strong. The water began pouring through before convict levee workers and citizens could get to the scene.

Every Store Flooded

Every store in the town of several hundred population was flooded and a considerable number of residences were in water. A large portion of the population had retreated to the higher section of the city.

Today's levee break was the fourth in the Tallahatchie flood that has sent about a thousand persons from their homes to the towns and protected farms of Panola, Quitman and Tallahatchie counties.

A triple break ten days ago in a levee south of Batesville flooded farm lands in an area 60 miles wide between Marks and Batesville. A smaller break at Coldwater, in Quitman County, caused some trouble there before it was mended.

Fight To Save Levees

The fight to strengthen levees was at its height today at Glendora and Sumner, a nearby town in Tallahatchie county. The river was expected to rise slightly during the next 24 hours. The water was level with the levee tops and lapping over in some places.

Up the river in Panola and Quitman counties the water was at a standstill but in the Leflore county and farther down the Yazoo valley the peak was approaching. The Yazoo river was believed capable of carrying off its tributary floods from the Tallahatchie and Coldwater without serious menace.

It was believed that all those marooned had been brought in safely from the farm sections, though many families in danger had remained in their homes with water under them, hoping they would not have to evacuate.

Webb is another Tallahatchie town surrounded by water. Thirty white families fled into the town from the flood zone with a large number of Negroes, taxing the generosity of the citizens and charitable organizations.

Dixon Boy Thrown Through Auto Glass

John White, son of Mrs. Florence P. White, miraculously escaped being killed Saturday afternoon in an unusual accident on Main street in Oregon when he was thrown through a window of an automobile driven by Mrs. Cora McGee of that place, sustaining terrible cuts about the head which necessitated 23 stitches to close, after which he was removed to his home in this city.

White and John Habacker had ridden from Dixon to Oregon on the former's motorcycle after dinner Saturday. In Oregon they were riding slowly near an intersection and observed the car driven by Mrs. McGee. In some manner the car was said to have been driven in the pathway of the motorcycle and John White was thrown through a window of the automobile, with only minor bruises.

TWO ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF NEW YORK BOY

Judge Directed Jury To Free Accused Men This Morn

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Vincent Coll and Frank Giordano were acquitted by order of the court today of the murder of five-year-old Michael Vengali, slain in a Harlem street last summer by a gangster fusillade.

The trial of Coll and Giordano opened on December 16. The state called as witnesses several children who had been playing in Harlem's "Little Italy" when a gangster car opened fire, killing the Vengali baby and injuring several others.

The principal witness for the prosecution was George Brecht of St. Louis, who positively identified Coll and Giordano as the killers. Under cross-examination, however, Brecht admitted he had lied in his testimony when he said he had never been a witness in a previous trial.

The defense considered the state's position so weakened by this admission that it ordered to send the case to the jury without summation. This was not permitted by the court, and the trial was postponed over the Christmas holiday until today.

When court opened today Assistant District Attorney James T. Neary who had acted as prosecutor, made the motion that an acquittal be directed and Judge Joseph E. Corrigan complied.

In making his motion Neary mentioned information received from St. Louis that Brecht had been convicted of grand larceny there in 1925. Brecht had testified on the stand he had never been convicted of any crime.

GIRLS MEMBERS OF HOLDUP GANG HELD IN CHICAGO

Attempted Holdup Of Cafe In Which Policeman Lost Life

Chicago, Dec. 28.—(UP)—Two girls, both in their teens, were held today by police who said they were confessed members of a bandit gang which attempted a spectacular cabaret holdup in which a police officer was slain.

The girls, held as members of a gang which included seven youths, were Dorothy Evans, 16, a divorcee, and Marcella Royce, 17, whose mother gave her a spanking for staying out late the night of the holdup.

Four of the youths also were arrested and three others were sought. Detectives Frank Johnson, Albert Hoffman and John L. Sullivan reconstructed the story of the holdup from confessions and said the girls acted as a "front" for their companions.

In the holdup of the Beach View Gardens a week ago Detective James J. Caplis was shot and killed in a gun battle on the dance floor with youthful desperadoes.

The officers said the girls entered the cafe with the seven youths and remained on the first floor. Their companions ascended to the second floor where the attempted robbery and shooting occurred.

Nicholas Bruno, 21, Tony Pape, 18, Jack Bullison, 20, and Frank Freeman, 25, were arrested with the girls.

Information leading to the arrests was obtained by police through anonymous telephone calls and an unsigned telegram from Milwaukee.

Chicago Musicians In Radio To Strike

The union also asked that technicians at control boards be replaced by musicians.

Petrillo said about 400 musicians would be affected.

START MOVEMENT APPARENTLY TO TAKE CHINCHOW

A Battle In Temperature Of 20 Below Zero Reported Today

BULLETIN
Tokyo, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The Ren-go News Agency reports in a dispatch from Yingkow that Japanese troops today occupied Tawa station on a branch of the Peiping-Mukden Railway, midway between Kowpangtze and Yingkow, after sharp fighting with the Chinese.

Two Japanese planes attacked a Chinese armored train previous to capture of the town and the crew of the latter responded with machine guns. The planes put the train out of commission and the crew was made prisoner by Japanese infantry.

The Japanese detachment will remain overnight and continue their drive against irregulars tomorrow in the direction of Panshan.

BULLETIN
Washington, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Any further military moves Japan may make toward Chinchow are expected to produce diplomatic repercussions in the form of protests from the United States.

This was the unofficial reaction here to Japan's notification that she will continue her operations toward the last Chinese stronghold in Manchuria.

The Japanese note was interpreted here as confirmation that the Tokyo government plans to continue her conquest of Manchuria.

To whatever extent the military movement continues, it seems certain that the leading nations, including the United States, will place into the diplomatic record their apprehension that Japan is violating treaty obligations.

DRIVE BEGAN TODAY

Mukden, Manchuria, Dec. 28.—(AP)—A Japanese drive in the direction of Kowpangtze began today with three regiments of infantry, one battalion of artillery and two troops of cavalry marching on that city from Tienchuangtai.

Kowpangtze is on the Peiping-Mukden Railway a little more than half way between Mukden and Chinchow. Tienchuangtai is to the southeast, not far from Yingkow. A branch connecting the Peiping-Mukden line with the South Manchuria Railway runs from Yingkow through Tienchuangtai to Kowpangtze, the junction point.

Since official secrecy veils the advance it was impossible to predict its ultimate objective or to say whether this movement might develop into the long-expected drive on Chinchow.

There was little doubt, however, that it would carry the Japanese at least as far as Kowpangtze, 44 miles from Tienchuangtai, amounting to about three days' march for the infantry.

Outcome Uncertain

Subsequent operations probably will depend upon the extent to which the Chinese regulars at Chinchow become involved. Apparently the Japanese intended to crush any force obstructing their operations against "bandits." Chinchow is 40 miles from Kowpangtze along the Peiping-Mukden railway.

In authoritative quarters here it was thought there would be a troop movement from Mukden coordinating the operations from Tienchuangtai. There was much martial activity here today as new troops arrived from Japan in goatskin jackets and used helmets covered with white cloth as a camouflage in the snow. Airplanes were humming and a number of scout planes flew into the southwest.

Use Snow Camouflage
In the operations to the south of Mukden both sides are using "snow camouflage" on battlefields where the temperature was around 20 below zero.

The Japanese discovered that Chinese irregulars had reinforced their trenches by pouring water along the earthworks. It froze immediately and provided resistance against bullets.

Yingkow reported by telephone that 5,000 men under General Amno were participating in the march toward Kowpangtze.

The cavalry was in the lead, followed by armored trucks and the main body of infantry and artillery with the General's headquarters staff bringing up the rear.

REPORT CHINESE FLEE

Tokyo, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Chinese irregular forces near Chanchiatun, Manchuria, a few miles northwest of Tienchuangtai, were reported fleeing today after heavy fighting in an encounter with General Amami's Japanese brigade which was aided in the attack by a squadron of light bombing planes.

The Japanese brigade, dispatched to the Ren-go News Agency said, advanced in three columns, driving everything before it.

The Japanese encountered another group of irregulars at noon near San-chiatun and Matao, the dispatches said.

Junior Choir St. Anne's Gave A Sacred Concert Sunday Afternoon

Those attending the sacred concert by the Junior choir of St. Anne's Catholic church participated in an event that was indeed inspiring. The quaint church which was an ideal setting for this concert, appeared at its loveliest with Christmas decorations, and lighted candles.

At 4 o'clock the twenty-four members of the choir, vested in the robes with white surplices proceeded from the sacristies on either side of the altar and two by two continued down the middle aisle until they reached the choir loft which is in the back of the church. This program was one of the peculiar charm due to the purely unaffected voices of children. The following is the program, with Miss Eleanor Hennensy director, and Tom Mosher, organist:

IN FAITH
We know not how God's wisdom works,
Or how His love proves true;
We know not how the flowers bloom
And seasons come anew.

We know not how the snowflakes fall
Or source of summer rain.
Or autumn leaves, or green of spring
Or peace that follows pain.

We know not life. We know not death,
We cannot lift our eyes
Beyond the human range of sight,
Horizon of the skies.

And yet throughout the ages long God's law has reigned supreme;
No cult nor creed for worldly gain
Has dimmed His perfect theme.

And ages came and ages go;
The flowers bloom and die;
The winter's snow and summer's rain
Alternate pass us by.

In faith alone we dry our tears;
In faith we kiss the rod;
In faith we raise our heads and see
The unchanging love of God.

Women Leaders Say Unemployment Will Be a Leading Campaign Issue

Women voters throughout the country will cast their votes in the next election mainly on a basis of the attitudes which the two rival parties take on the problem of unemployment, according to a national symposium of opinion gathered from women leaders by Anna Steese Richardson, political editor of the Woman's Home Companion. The women consulted in this survey are mostly heads of national organizations or federations, and thus speak for a membership of 12,650,000 American women.

Unemployment came first in the list of outstanding issues with eighty percent of the members of this representative jury. Several of the jurywomen refused to consider any other issue as worth mentioning.

Those that suggested secondary issues indicated their relative importance, after unemployment, as follows: World peace, tariffs, foreign debts, prohibition and child health. Ida Tarbell differed from most of her colleagues on the political jury in giving first place to the tariff question, rather than to unemployment. "I limit myself," she replied, "to the issue which in my judgment stands high above all others at the present moment. It is: Cutting down trade barriers between the nations of the world. As I look at it, the channels of world trade are clogged by tariffs. It is idle to talk about genuine prosperity until trade can flow freely according to the needs and desires of men. When trade is really free the need for armaments will disappear. So important do I think this is, that all the other issues seem so secondary as to be hardly worth talking about."

Lena Madison Phillips, president of the National Council of Women, supported Miss Tarbell, declaring: "The outstanding campaign issues will be those in which our relations with other nations are involved—the tariff and the World Court. Upon them depend the future of civilization and the welfare of the American family pocketbook."

But all the other members of the jury regarded unemployment as the principal issue.

Ruth Bryan Owen, for instance, suggested: "To have men anxious to work and yet be without employment, while on the other hand money which should be in circulation is being hoarded, is a situation which is wrong."

Congressman Ruth Pratt agreed with her in the following emphatic words: "Unemployment is a problem of vital national interest. It is a subject to be worked out through some permanent policy. It requires the cooperation of capital and labor, employer and employee, to preclude the possibility of such a distressing situation as that with which we are confronted today."

Mary Anderson, director of the Woman's Bureau in the Department of Labor, was even more outspoken. "To me," she said, the great issue in the coming election must be the remedies for unemployment. There is nothing else so important, and the platforms of the contesting parties should contain real remedies for the situation as it exists today. Even if there has been decided improvement in business conditions before the campaign, we shall still have unemployment. Millions of families are suffering, through no fault of their own, and it seems to me that the dominant issue in the next presidential election will be bread and not drink."

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the Women's Division of the Republican party, suggested three important issues—unemployment, world peace and child welfare. Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, gave first place to the importance of women studying economics before they decide how to vote. "The problems of unemployment and world-wide depression," she said, "create an obligation on the part of women voters to share more constructively in well-considered forward-looking legislation and to seek persistently an understanding of the economic ills that all the world."

According to Mrs. John F. Sippel, the outstanding campaign issue is economic stability, including the readjustment of agricultural life. Grace Morrison Poole, vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, listed the important issues for women voters as follows: "Unemployment—how it can be prevented and how far the government shall go in constructive plans to prevent it; production and its regulation; tariffs—their strength and weakness; war debts—whether they shall or shall not be paid; how to limit our staggering burden of armaments and maintain the proper balance between a sane nationalism and a sane internationalism."

Women have a right to demand that the party which receives their support shall represent a sound economic program, declared Mrs. G. M. Bowman, president of the Federation of Professional Women's Clubs. "Business women," she added, "are in touch with the practical application of economics and should be able to apply the acid test to the economic programs of all parties."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt places unemployment first among the important campaign issues, but thinks it is largely a matter for local and state governments. She gives second place to prohibition, and third place to international questions.

Miss Clara Bow Puts Wifehood First

Hollywood, Dec. 26—(UP)—Clara Bow, who recently married Rex Bell, also of the motion pictures, will put the business of being a wife, travel and enjoyment of life ahead of the films after completing her next picture, she declared today in revealing plans for semi-retirement.

She does not intend to quit the screen permanently, she said, but having achieved stardom and financial independence declared she would place less stress on her career than formerly.

"Hollywood," she said, "has given me worldly possessions but has denied me the happiness most young girls seek. I am not happily married and naturally I look forward to the delights of life."

"I have sufficient funds for the rest of my life, and I want to travel. I want things I have never been able to wish for before—things that every other girl desires—love, happiness and freedom. You cannot get them from studios, and you cannot buy them."

"I am anxious to make one more smashing good picture, and of course, if they want more after that, the results of this first one will tell the story."

Mothers adopt Vick "Colds-Control" Plan

Means Reduction of the Number, Severity and High Costs of the Family's Colds

Doubly welcome to mothers is news that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have perfected a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to lessen the number and severity of colds and reduce their costs in money, lost time and health. The plan is introduced along with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, based on a new idea for preventing colds—companion product to VapoRub, the modern, external method of treating colds.

TRIAL OFFER BY LOCAL DRUGGISTS

You have Vicks VapoRub—now get Vicks Nose Drops and use together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to reduce their number and severity. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE VICK PLAN:

- 1. BEFORE a Cold Starts
When children come in sniffing and sneezing, apply a few Vicks Drops up each nostril. Use the Drops yourself at that first scratchy, sneezy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold." If you or the children catch cold easily, use the Drops after exposure to any condition you know is apt to be followed by a cold—dry, over-heated rooms—indoor crowds—sudden changes, wet or cold—dust and smoke—etc., etc.—and there is the slightest stuffiness. Used in time, many colds can be avoided.
- 2. AFTER a Cold Starts
At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. This gives you full 24-hour treatment—and without the risks of constant internal "dosing," so often upsetting to digestion, especially the delicate digestions of children.

We ask you politely, did you ever imagine the opportunity would present itself to buy a $1.75 or $2.98 or $3.95 or a $4.50

ABOLISHING FOOTBALL.

There is every indication that the football rules committee this winter will tinker with the regulations in an effort to make the game safer. The kickoff may be abolished, linemen may be prohibited from leaving their posts to make interference on end runs, and this, that and the other minor rule may be changed.

But there remains the one important question, which the rules committee will not even consider, namely: isn't it quite possible that the game of American rugby ought to be abolished entirely?

The exhibits against the game are damaging.

First, last and most damning is the fact that something like two-score young Americans were killed playing the game during the autumn season of 1931.

It has been said that the number is not large, considering the vast numbers of young men playing the game. That is sheer nonsense. It is large—appalling large. You might ask the parents of one of those dead boys how they feel about it, and see what sort of answer you get.

Defenders of the game also point out that most of these fatalities occurred on teams which lacked high-grade coaching, and that boys who are properly trained do not run such risk. But that—putting entirely aside the fact that such splendidly coached teams as West Point and Fordham suffered tragic casualties—only leads us to the second count against football; that it has become a game for experts, a game that no boy should play unless he can, almost literally, give all of his time to it. A poorly trained basketball player, a poorly trained baseball player, a poorly trained golfer—they do not run the risk of losing their lives when they start to play.

Add to these counts the emotional cost of the game, illustrated by Chick Meeshan's recent confession about "whipping boys to a frenzy," and you have an indictment that is almost overwhelming in its force.

On the other side of the Atlantic there is another kind of football—English rugby. Innumerable young Englishmen play it; innumerable other Englishmen watch them. Fatalities are extremely uncommon. Spectators and player alike seem to enjoy the game quite as intensely as we enjoy our game. Wouldn't it be wise to see if English rugby might not replace the American article?

"SUCKER MONEY."

According to a recent statement from W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber Company, one of the prime causes of the present depression has been an abundance, in prosperous times, of "sucker money."

"Sucker money" is the money which the investing public, prior to 1929, was ready to throw into industrial securities without proper investigation. As Mr. O'Neil points out, it led to many unwarranted expansions of industrial plants, and when the crash came there was no possibility of re-employing the men who had had jobs in the over-expanded trades. "Expansion," says Mr. O'Neil, "should be financed by earnings, not by sales of bonds and stocks, except in rare instances."

That is an excellent warning for industrialists to bear in mind when prosperity returns. When we go up too fast and too high we are apt to come down the same way.

JAILBIRD SETTLERS.

The Board of Education at Savannah, Ga., has filed a protest with the publisher of a current school history, protesting against the book's statement that Georgia's original settlers were largely convicts and criminals.

This, very likely, will awaken the pundits and we shall have another learned discussion of what did and did not happen in colonial days. For the innocent bystander, however, the thing is interesting chiefly as a revelation of the universal human desire to present one's ancestors in the best light possible.

As a matter of fact, very few colonial Americans, in any part of the country, came from the upper classes in the old country. The lower classes furnished the bulk of the immigrants. It was the man who had nothing to lose at home who was most ready to try his luck in a new land. If Georgia received a number of jail birds, what of that? They became excellent citizens after they had landed. Isn't that enough?

If at the age of 50 you are looking really girlish, the chances are you are looking all wrong.—Emily Post, Etiquette Authority.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinites looked the rocket over and Scouty said, "We've seen a score of very funny things while we've been traveling all around. We've seen great caves and castles high, and even met folks in the sky, but, gee, I must admit this is the strangest thing we've found."

The man then said, "Climb right inside. It's built for comfort, on a ride. You'll notice I've made windows so the folks can look right out. Then, when up in the air they go, the ground can be seen, down below. Most people wouldn't have the nerve to ride in it, no doubt."

"Oh, shucks, it wouldn't frighten me," said Clowny. "How glad I would be, if I could just sit down and then go whizzing through the sky. I'm sure that I'd be safe and sound, unless it tumbled to the ground. You see, it takes a lot to give a lad like me a scare."

This made the other Tinites smile. Said Coppy, "You'd sail for a mile and then you'd start to wish that you were back upon the earth. You've seen you do queer stunts be've been traveling all around. We've seen great caves and castles high, and even met folks in the sky, but, gee, I must admit this is the strangest thing we've found."

Soon Carpy said, "I'll tell you what! If Clowny thinks that he's so hot, let's all go riding in this rocket. I am not afraid." And then they asked the man, who said, "Well, I don't mind, lads. Go ahead! If you will all sit down inside, a fine flight shall be made."

"But let me give you some advice, to help the trip turn out real nice. When you are in the cabin, just sit still. Don't move around. Now go ahead and all climb in and then the trip will soon begin. I'll stay out here and make the rocket shoot up off the ground."

(The Tinites go rocketing in the next story.)

START RAILWAY CONTROL.

On Dec. 28, 1917, the United States government assumed control of all railroads in the country.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo was appointed by President Wilson as director general.

President Wilson declared: "This is a war of resources no less than men, perhaps even more than men, and it is necessary for the complete mobilization of our resources that the transportation system of the country should be organized and controlled under a single authority and simplified method of co-ordination which have not proved possible under private management and control."

Padua, Italy, was bombarded from the air and 13 persons were killed and 60 injured.

French troops repulsed a surprise attack by Germans near Veho on the western front.

British repulsed Turkish attacks north and northwest of Jerusalem, and advanced two and one-half miles on a 90-mile front.

Chicago Tax Levy Highest Ever Made

Chicago, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The highest tax rate ever levied in Chicago and Cook county was announced today by County Clerk Robert Switzler.

The 1930 tax bills, payable Jan. 1, 1932, carried an increase of 9 to 9 1/2 per cent over the 1929 rate, and approximately 30 per cent over the 1928 levy.

The governments of the city and county have borrowed their limit on the 1930 taxes and money remains to be collected. This is the levy that the Chicago Real Estate Board seeks before the special session of the legislature to have funded by a bond issue, payable over a 20-year period.

Levying of the 1930 tax, Mark Levy, president of the board, claimed, will launch a taxpayers' strike.

Approximately $141,000,000 remains to be collected from the levies of 1927, 1928 and 1929.

TUBERCULOUS NECK GLANDS

Tuberculosis of the glands of the neck, was time past, much more common than it is at present.

The change for better is to be credited very largely to the pasteurization of milk studies have shown.

A certain portion of tuberculous neck glands are caused by the bovine type of tuberculous germ.

Cattle are also subject to tuberculosis. But the germ that causes tuberculosis in cattle, though related to the germs that cause tuberculosis in man, is different in certain essential characters.

Children become infected with the bovine (cattle) tuberculous bacillus by drinking unpasteurized milk from infected cows.

The effective pasteurization of milk destroys the germs that it might contain.

Pasteurization and the destruction of cattle ill with tuberculous have served to reduce bovine tuberculous infection in humans.

Tuberculous glands in the neck are a common form of disease due to the bovine tubercle bacillus. It may, of course, also be caused by the human type of germ.

This condition is most common in the young, the majority of cases appearing between the ages of 18 months and 7 years of age.

As a rule, a chain of glands running from the angle of the jaw and down the neck is affected.

The swelling is slow in progression. There is little or no pain at all.

During the early stages the glands may be stone hard. Later, as the glands break down, they soften.

Not uncommonly only one side of the neck is affected.

The presence of tuberculous glands of the neck does not necessarily imply that the child has tuberculosis.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By The United Press

Washington, Dec. 28.—There is a story that Secretary of the Navy Adams met Secretary of the Interior Wilbur at a White House reception, and they engaged in this bit of repartee:

Wilbur: Since I read that article in "Time" about the hard bench in your reception room, I'm glad I don't have to call on you.

Adams (with his best New England reserve): I didn't read the article. Wilbur: Don't you feel out of place among all these lawyers?

Adams: Don't you?

New Adams is a member of the Suffolk county, Mass., bar, has a Bachelor of Laws degree from Harvard, read law in the office of Seymour Butler of Boston, and practiced with his teacher and with old Judge Bumpus. Wilbur is a Doctor of Medicine who went far in the field of education (strange how the recent Secretaries of the Interior have been specialists in the human interior!).

Those who overheard the snappy dialogue have been wondering ever since whether Wilbur was insulting Adams, or whether, being after all only a university president and not a professional politician, he thought a Secretary of the Navy must of course have had experience with yachts. But looking at it from that point of view Adams does belong to two yacht clubs, and he skipper a yacht that skipped to victory in an international race away back in 1920. Which is more than some historic Secretaries of the Navy could boast.

A Caribbean diplomat recently appeared at a formal gathering in which he reversed the usual "morning" costume. He wore black trousers and a gray coat, and topped them off with a green tie (Erin go bragh!) and a fancy waist. The effect was said to be fascinating to the punctilious, but since this diplomat is not the Prince of Wales nor Mrs. Hoover, his idiosyncrasy seems unlikely to become a popular fad.

"Automaton" Shown Up By Knife Stab

New York, Dec. 26.—(UP)—Joseph Daly, "mechanical man" who stalks rigidly about Times Square without so much as batting an eye, forgot his role very quickly last night when a person in the crowd stabbed him in the thigh.

Throngs who had been following Daly, unable quite to make up their minds whether he was an automaton of a human being, saw him writhe in pain and contort his usually "frozen" features.

Daly, to attract a crowd, had been jerking "shadow boxing" as he walked down the street, and his fist had barely missed the nose of a young man. The man, thinking he was being attacked, drew a knife and stabbed the "automaton."

The injury was painful but not serious. Daly charged William Corbin, an unemployed soda clerk, was his attacker. Corbin was held charged with felonious assault.

Capital's Police Force In Bad Way

Washington, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The police of the National Capital are in a bad way. Confronted by a wave of petty robberies the whole force had to work overtime. Now, right out of a precinct captain's desk, $137 has been stolen.

Nonplussed, the precinct has called for help from headquarters detectives. The money is property of prisoners, kept where it should be constantly under official eye. Nevertheless, the drawer is empty.

THREE KINDS of LOVE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANNE, CECILY and MARY FRANCES live with their grandparents, once wealthy, now impoverished. Anne's and Cecily's earnings support the household. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandparents are known respectively as "ROSALE" and "GRAND" and they insist on keeping up pretenses of their former wealth. Anne, 28, and Cecily, 22, do secretarial work and Mary-Frances, 15, is still in school. When the story opens Anne has been engaged to PHILIP E. ROY, a young lawyer, for eight years. They can not marry because Anne knows her sister and grandparents depend on her to manage their home. Cecily brings BARRY McKEEL home to dinner with her. She is falling in love with him. Mary-Frances and her friend, ERMIN, tell her about the arrival of a stock company actor known as EARL DE ARMOUNT. They meet him on the street and he speaks to them. Mary-Frances is thrilled to meet him. Cecily tells him she is in love with him. He promises to see her again. Next morning Cecily talks to Anne about Barry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

"I'm more interested," Ann said, "in what Lindbergh thinks about you."

"He likes my looks," Cecily was earnest again. "That is—he always says 'lovely.' That is less than beautiful, I know. And, of course I'm not beautiful. But I think it is better than 'pretty.' What do you think?"

"I think," Ann answered, as she walked to the door, "that he is in love with you. Isn't that what I'm supposed to think, Cissy?"

"Ann, I don't know. Truly, I can't tell. He says something, and then— Well, I don't know. I'm coking to find out. He likes me a lot, I'm sure of that. But he's sort of—shy of love, or queer about it, I think."

"Most men are," said Ann. "No, I don't mean that way Barry's different. He is entirely different from any other man I've ever known. He—"

Ann interrupted. "I must run on down and start breakfast. But I want to tell you something while I have a chance without Mary-Frances around. If you haven't made a dinner engagement with Barry for this evening, perhaps you'd better not. See him after dinner, if you like, but come home for dinner, Grand—"

"But I have made one. And I'm going to—ep it. Dear heavens, no Grand found his leading strings again? Will he take it out on you, angel, if I go?"

"No—I don't care if he does. This is it: Grand did fuss because you were gone last evening for dinner—but that didn't matter. After dinner though, Ermintrude came over and for some reason that seemed to get both Grand and Rosalie started on that same old stuff about our never having friends here—music and merriment and laughter in our home, you know. They just kept at it, and went from bad to worse, and then Rosalie had to remember your birthday, a week from tomorrow and they are insisting upon giving you a birthday party. I couldn't stop it nor do a thing about it. Unless you can stop it, I'm afraid they'll make me carry it through. I thought you might say—"

"A party? For me?" questioned Cecily.

"Isn't it dreadful! I brought out every objection I decently could without hurting their feelings, but—"

"But," Cecily interposed, "I love it, Ann. I was thinking only last evening that it might seem odd to Barry that we haven't people to play with—a group, you know."

"We haven't, though," Ann said. "Not any more. There'd be no one to invite."

"Pooh! We can think of plenty of people if we count them up. There's Barry, and you and Phil and Marta and Herbert. I said Barry, didn't I? Let's see—"

"Well, we can talk it over later, Ann said, and opened the door.

"Yes," Cecily agreed. "It will be fun!"

Ann closed the door and went down the hall toward the back stairs. "The cats taken poison, and the baby's gone insane!" she muttered. It was her profoundest oath, significant of her furthest desperation.

"I needn't," were Cecily's first words when she came, wearing her best brown dress with its wide white collar and cuffs, into the kitchen 20 minutes later, "be such a lot of work—the party, I mean need it, Ann, nor so very expensive?"

Ann, trying to unscrew the lid from a jar of stewed plums, glanced from it to Cecily. "No, dear," she answered, "of course not," and dispensed herself. She had planned to restore Cecily's sanity, in part, at least, at any cost. But wiping that expression of wistful, shining bliss from Cissy's face would be, it seemed to Ann, as cruel as rubbing a damp sponge across a picture drawn by a child on a slate and presented for admiration.

"We could have ice cream and cake and coffee, that would be enough. We wouldn't positively have to order brick ice cream—"

"Put on a smock, dear. That apron won't cover your sleeves."

"And I could make the cakes on Friday evening, after dinner. We'd have to have two, I suppose—a devil cake and that cheap, easy sponge. That would leave Saturday afternoon free to get the house ready. Well air the library and have it mostly in there. They wouldn't need to go upstairs—nor all over the house. We'd steer them from one oasis to another. And we wouldn't call it a party, of course. We'd just say that some friends were coming in for the evening. What's the matter, angel?"

"I can not get this lid off." "Here. I'll pull the rubber out with the icepick. That's the best way to open the old things. I thought we'd ask Marta and Herbert. I'd like to have Gretchen, and I should—I'm in debt to her—and she'd have some man to bring. But she would smoke. She says right out that she won't go places where she can't, and I suppose Grand would lose control."

"My word, yes! We wouldn't dare risk it."

"I know," Cecily sighed. "There—that's the way to get them off. Ann; pull the rubber out first. I'll dish them. No, I can't have Gretchen, I suppose. But if I don't ask her I can't ask Jean nor Dorothy. I thought you could ask Nella and her husband."

"They wouldn't come. Look at the toast in the oven, will you Cissy? They haven't stepped out side the house in the evening since the baby was born. Nella won't trust him with strangers. I don't blame her a bit. He's a darling. I wish Penn Johns and her husband hadn't moved to Seattle to live—but they have. Could you ask the Mattson twins?"

"I could," Cecily's laugh was not wholly successful, "and I could send a cable over to the Prince of Wales."

"I don't think the Mattson twins are so much."

"Neither do I; but they think so. Anyway, Grand wouldn't let them in if they did come. Don't you remember the time he and Rosalie went with the Carmichaels to the Multnomah for dinner, and he came home and all but got out the grind stone and the knife to have them ready in case we should ever act like that? No. The twins are out."

"Well?" said Ann, but she did not say, "I told you so," as she picked up the loaded tray to carry it through the butler's pantry into the dining room. Grand and Rosalie always hoped and trusted that they had not, as yet, sunk to the level of a society where breakfasting in the kitchen was condoned.

POOR Cissy, when Ann returned to the kitchen, was standing precisely where she had been standing when Ann had left the kitchen. The smell of burned toast was bitter in the room, and blue spirals of smoke were writhing out from the oven door.

"I could wear my pink," Cecily mused dreamily. "And you could wear your yellow, and— Oh angel! I am sorry. I forgot all about the toast. Here, let me do it. I'm so absent-minded lately. Please, I'll attend to it. Can't I scrape it?"

Mary-Frances, pink checked and sweet as a cherub on a candy box lid, came into the kitchen and said, "Whew! What's burning? Rosalie would like her breakfast on a tray this morning, if it isn't too much trouble. She's feeling a little weak. She'd prefer orange juice to cooked fruit, if it is convenient. She wants it strained. Grand needs a cup of hot water right away. I'll take it up. He fears a slight digestive disturbance. He has hiccups. And, oh, yes, Ann, I almost forgot. Phil wants you on the telephone. He's waiting."

"Phil?" Ann questioned incredulously, and sped to the dining room, and to the telephone, and quavered, "Hello."

"Ann, dear! Did I startle you?" Ann released the long breath she had been holding. "Phil, are you all right? I—I thought something must have happened—it's so early."

"Sorry! Surely I'm all right. I only wanted to come over in the car and take you to the office this morning."

"Phil," Ann said, and succeeded at last in steadying her voice, "tell me now. What is it? What is the trouble?"

"Not a thing on earth," he assured her, "except that I haven't seen you since day before yesterday, and that it is a glorious morning, and I want to see you. Can't a man take a notion to see his girl in the morning without causing a panic?"

"Well—but—" she said. It was too amazing. It was like old times, away long ago at the beginning of things.

"Well, but," he mocked. "Have you a date with another man to ride to your office this morning?" "Phil, dear," she protested, and laughed and almost sang. "I'll love it, of course. How good of you to think of it. How good—"

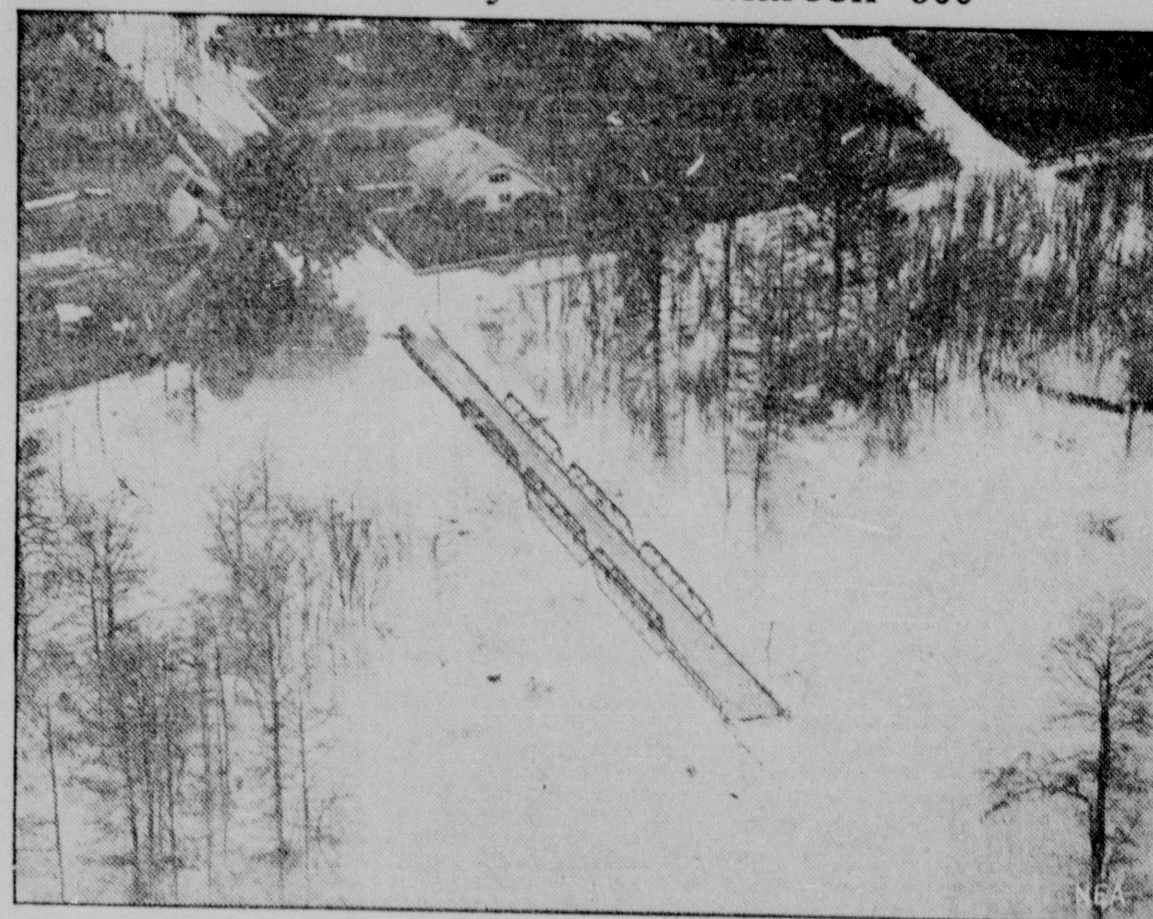

"Oh-oh!" When she went into the kitchen again there was something of Cecily's dreamy radiance in her own heart-shaped face.

"I could wear my yellow," she said. "And you could wear your pink."

RIISING FLOOD WATERS ISOLATE MISSISSIPPI TOWNS

Where Heavy Floods Maroon 300

This remarkable air view of one of the principal highways into Glendora, Miss., was taken by a plane chartered by NEA Service and the Dixon Evening Telegraph and shows why 300 persons in the little town are marooned. The overflow of the Tallahatchie river has blocked this bridge and other avenues for escape. A railroad has sent hundreds of cars as near as possible to the town to house refugees who come out by boat.

Shaded portions of the map above show where flood waters threaten towns in Mississippi and Louisiana. The Tallahatchie river in Mississippi and the D'Arbonne in Louisiana are far over their banks. Farnerville in Louisiana is one of the towns completely cut off.

Christmas Quiet Day For Wilhelm

Doorn, Holland, Dec. 26.—(UP)—The serious illness at Frankfurt of the former Queen of Greece, sister of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, made the Christmas celebration of Wilhelm and his family the quietest since the World War.

Prince Ferdinand, youngest son of the ex-Kaiser's wife, Princess Hermine, came from Germany. He was the only guest. The small party, Wilhelm and Hermine and Hermine's son and two daughters, gathered around the Christmas tree which the ex-Kaiser had cut himself and on which he helped his wife hang presents.

Although the family celebration was quiet, Wilhelm insisted on giving the regular Christmas party to members of his staff and their families. He received them late in the afternoon in a hall decorated with holly and evergreen. Wilhelm and Hermine handed out presents, then Wilhelm delivered the Christmas sermon based on a passage from the second chapter of Luke.

"It came to pass that in those days there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed."

Wilhelm spoke briefly. He was careful to avoid anything political or non-religious.

He spoke of the beauty of Christmas and of Christ's birth. He then led the gathering into the so-called western room where the Christmas tree and a replica of the Christ child's manger had been prepared.

A simple private dinner was held in the evening. There was no public exchange of gifts.

Wilhelm was dressed in civilian clothes, and wore no orders or decorations.

A GREAT AIR-LINER WAS MISSING

A PASSENGER PLANE, bound across the continent with eight persons aboard, was long overdue at an airport in the southwest. For more than three days, rumors and reports came from the entire section, alternately raising and crushing hope.

Finally, there came a definite clew to the plane's whereabouts. Through the air, by auto and pack-horse, and even on foot, ASSOCIATED PRESS reporters penetrated the wilderness, reached the scene of the disaster and a waiting world received the news of the passengers' unfortunate fate. From the nearly impenetrable mountain-side were rushed the first photographs of the wreckage to member newspapers throughout the country.

ILLINOIS TAX PAYERS GIVEN REFUNDS BY U. S.

The Illinois Central Is At Top Of List With $1,158,675

Washington, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Treasury reconsideration on taxes and the decision that it had been wrong in a good many instances put $69,476,930 in refunds back into taxpayers' pocketbooks in the 1931 fiscal year ending June 30.

Secretary Mellon reported today to Congress that the sum included all taxes illegally collected and returned but he did not list credits and abatements. The latter are deducted from taxes assessed but not yet paid. Refunds are actual cash payments.

This year before, refunds totaled $126,836,333, abatements $176,398,377 and credits $36,535,245.

Only two separate refunds were for more than $1,000,000 in which class there were 12 a year earlier. The Illinois Central Railroad got $1,158,675; the Prairie Pipe Line Company of Independence, Kansas, $1,784,494.

The Prairie group profited also by the Treasury's decision that there had been other overassessments and errors. To the Prairie Oil & Gas Company at Pardo, Wyoming, went $31,924; to the Prairie Oil & Gas Company at Independence, $531,740, making the total for the three concerns $2,348,158.

Also, the United Verde Copper Company offices at Clarkdale, Arizona, got $50,476 and the New York offices $996,822, for a total of $1,047,398.

As usual hundreds of names familiar to the country were on the list of the thousands who received refunds of more than $50. John D. Rockefeller was there again with $31,324; his son, John D. Jr., got $1,804.

To Secretary Mellon himself there was a refund of $85,022; to his brother, $14,728, and to Mrs. Jennie K. Mellon, $2,594.

Three well known movie stars convinced the Treasury they were entitled to returns, Douglas Fairbanks, to the extent of $12,391, and Helene Costello Sherman and Dolores Costello Barrymore, $1,345 each.

Washington, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Illinois Central Railroad, with a refund of $1,158,675, topped the list of Illinois income tax payers obtaining rebates from the government in the last fiscal year.

The next highest Illinois federal tax refund was $753,375 to Swift & Company.

IDEAL STADIUM IN CHICAGO FOR BIG CONVENTION

Next to Largest Indoor Meeting Place In County

Chicago, Dec. 28.—(UP)—The Chicago Stadium, palace of sport, 20 minutes walk west of the loop, which will seat more persons than any other indoor meeting place in the United States, except one, will be the scene of the Republican National Convention next summer.

Rearing its walls around an entire city block on West Madison Street, the Chicago Stadium possesses as fine facilities as any convention hall in the world.

It will seat 30,000 persons at a political gathering or 25,000 for boxing matches and other sport events, its owners estimate.

Weather is manufactured to order by the stadium's ventilating and refrigerating system. Temperature can be regulated to a split degree. Dirt and dust are removed from the air. Humidity can be regulated as desired. Twenty-three tons of fresh air can be forced into the structure every minute.

Within three blocks of the entrance are two elevated systems, five main artery boulevards, two for one-way traffic, and six surface street car lines.

The Stadium can be reached from the heart of the Loop by automobile or taxicab in five to seven minutes, by elevated in the same time, by bus or street car in 10 to 12 minutes, and if one walks, 20 minutes is ample time.

Acoustics are excellent. A loud-speaking system makes a speaker's voice audible anywhere in the building. The "speaking point" can be located wherever desired.

SCHMELING AND WALKER BATTLE GIVEN TO MIAMI

Heavyweights Scheduled To Clash There Last Week In February

New York, Dec. 28.—(UP)—With the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker world heavyweight championship match definitely scheduled at Miami, Fla., the last week in February, Joe Jacobs, manager of the German champion, has outlined an ambitious 1932 program for his fighter.

The tentative program calls for Schmeling to make at least two and possibly three defenses of his title with Jack Dempsey, former champion, and Jack Sharkey, Boston challenger, under consideration for outdoor fights in New York.

"I will confer with President W. F. Carey of the Garden today," Jacobs told the United Press, "and am ready to sign for the Walker bout. We have agreed upon terms for the Walker bout at Miami in February. The Garden demands that we also sign for a second bout in New York this summer and I have agreed if the Milk Fund is allowed to share in the promotion."

"We will agree to meet either Dempsey or Sharkey or both in summer bouts."

Schmeling will sail from Germany tomorrow on the S. S. Europa, Jacobs said, and will arrive in New York January 4. He will make a brief exhibition tour, appearing in Alexandria, Va., Jan. 15, after which he will depart for Florida. Training quarters for the Walker bout will be opened, probably at Palm Beach, on Jan. 20.

Garden officials have announced that they will make no guarantee for the fight, Schmeling to receive the champion's share of 37 1/2 per cent of the gate receipts with Walker taking the challenger's end of 12 1/2 per cent.

BOXING REVIEW

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Welterweights in New York, light heavyweights in Chicago and Milwaukee, they're the headliners of this week's national fight program.

Billy Townsend, sensational Vancouver welterweight, battles the top ten rounder in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Townsend has been a consistent winner in recent months.

At Chicago on the same night, ten light heavyweights will be paired off as the National Boxing Association continues its search for an outstanding challenger to meet Maxie Rosenbloom.

At Milwaukee on Friday, Rosenbloom himself will tackle Dave Maier of Milwaukee in a ten round non-title engagement.

Other leading shows this week will be held in Oakland, Calif., and Mexico City. At the former, Max Baer, Livermore heavyweight, takes on Arthur Dekub, big New York Italian on Wednesday. In Mexico City on Friday Fidel LaBarba, Los Angeles featherweight, encounters the Mexican batzweight champion, Baby Ariz Arizendi.

Ten Years Ago Today—Bob Martin, heavyweight boxer and champion of the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War, received serious injuries at Terra Alta, W. Va., when his auto plunged down an embankment and turned over. It was Martin's second such accident in the year and happened only a half mile from the scene of the first one.

Maybe It's "Home Again Blues"

It looks like Al Simmons and Rabbit Maranville, back from a baseball tour in the Orient, are trying to string us along and make us believe they can strum one of those things. But we can see through it; they've got an old broom and Al is only laughing instead of singing as it appears. You might know, though, that the Rabbit would be in on something like this.

PROSPECTS FOR CARDS TO COP AGAIN ARE GOOD

New Men Will Add Power To World Champions

St. Louis, Dec. 28.—(AP)—New personalities, full of attraction for fans, will be seen in the 1932 lineup of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Chief among the additions are Hack Wilson, former Cub fence buster who will attempt a comeback to the home run heights he scaled in 1930, and Dizzy Dean, eccentric mound star who struck out more than 300 batsmen for Houston in the Texas League last season.

Wilson always has been a drawing card. Younger by several years than Burleigh Grimes, veteran pitcher for whom he was traded, Hack is confident he can regain his lost batting prestige. Reports of physical examinations indicate there is nothing the matter with his eyes, and he blames his 1931 debacle on "manager trouble."

Dean, who admits "I might be dizzy off the ball field but I'm not dizzy out there on the mound," turned in 26 victories for the Houston Buffaloes last season with an earned run average of 1.53 per nine innings. Eleven of his victories were shutouts.

Other newcomers will include Lee Cunningham, third baseman from Danville, Ill.; Pat Crawford, Columbus first-sacker who led the American Association last season in homers and runs batted in; Eddie Delker, infielder with Rochester last year; Joel Hurt, fleet-footed Columbus outfielder; Tex Carleton, Houston hurler who won his 13 starts in the 1931 season; Ray Starr, rangy pitcher coming up from Rochester; and Bud Teachout, southpaw moundsman obtained from Chicago in the Grimes-Wilson deal.

With the exception of Grimes and Andy Hux, utility third baseman, and Wally Reuther, outfielder sold to Cincinnati, the 1931 Cardinal squad bids fair to report in force for the coming season.

Chick Haley, leading National League batsman, and the redoubtable Pepper Martin will be on hand together with the regular infield of Jim Bottomley, Frankie Frisch, Charley Gelbert and Sparky Adams. Jimmy Wilson is the mainstay behind the bat. Jim Collins will give Bottomley a race at first.

Paul Derringer and Wild Bill Hallahan looked to be the mainstays of the hurling staff. Despite the reduction in player limits from 25 to 23 men, the Cards probably will keep nine hurlers, including six starting pitchers and three relief men.

Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Florida's first experience with legal racing brought only a mediocre play by pari-mutuel wagers as the season opened at Tropical Park this week end.

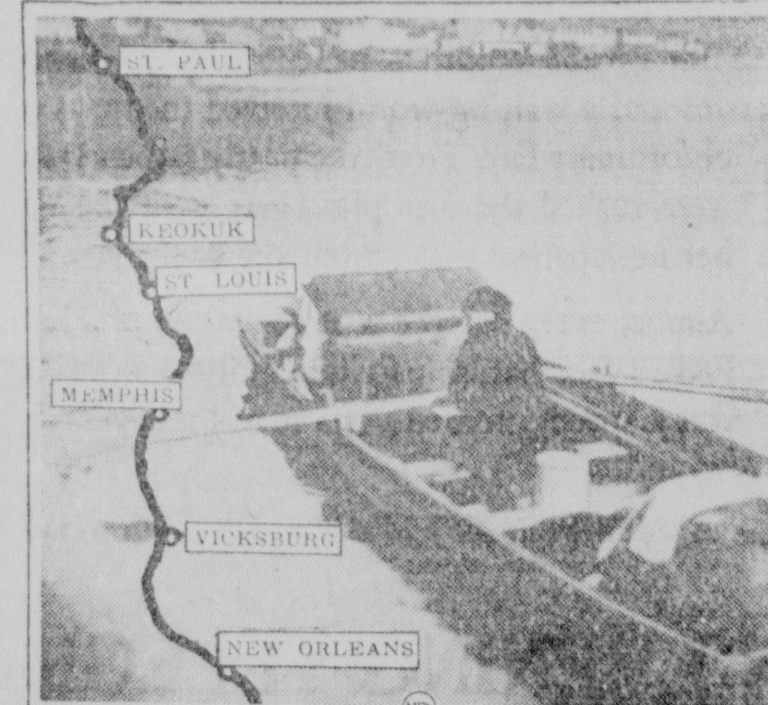

Unofficial reports were that approximately $60,000 was wagered at track betting windows during the seven-day program of Saturday's inaugural. Most of the returns from the pari-mutuel system were at comparatively short odds. Light Nun, a filly who ran second in the first race, was an exception. She paid $68.20 for a $2 ticket.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The money golfing caravan will trek into Florida this week for the opening of the winter search for gold and glory at the $2500 Miami open tournament Jan. 1, 2 and 3.

The 72 hole tournament oldest of the Miami area contests already has drawn more than 125 entries. Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., who won the 1931 tournament with a sterling 294 will defend his honors against a field drawn into Florida by the dazzling prospects of more than $25,000 in prize money.

Sports Parade

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE

(Pinch-hitting for Henry McLemore) New York, Dec. 28.—(UP)—Unlike the Democratic and Republican conventions, the meetings of the brotherhoods of football coaches and officials are held at the same time in the same city, probably as counter-attractions to each other.

The rules committee goes into session here this week, as usual, determined to make the game so safe and sane that it could be played by teams representing the Home for Decayed Gentlewomen or the Misses Bingle's School for Tiny Tots.

The coaches, on the other hand, seek to keep the game masculine and try to hold the officials down to adding only such regulations as will prevent assault in the first degree, unlawful use of firearms, and mayhem.

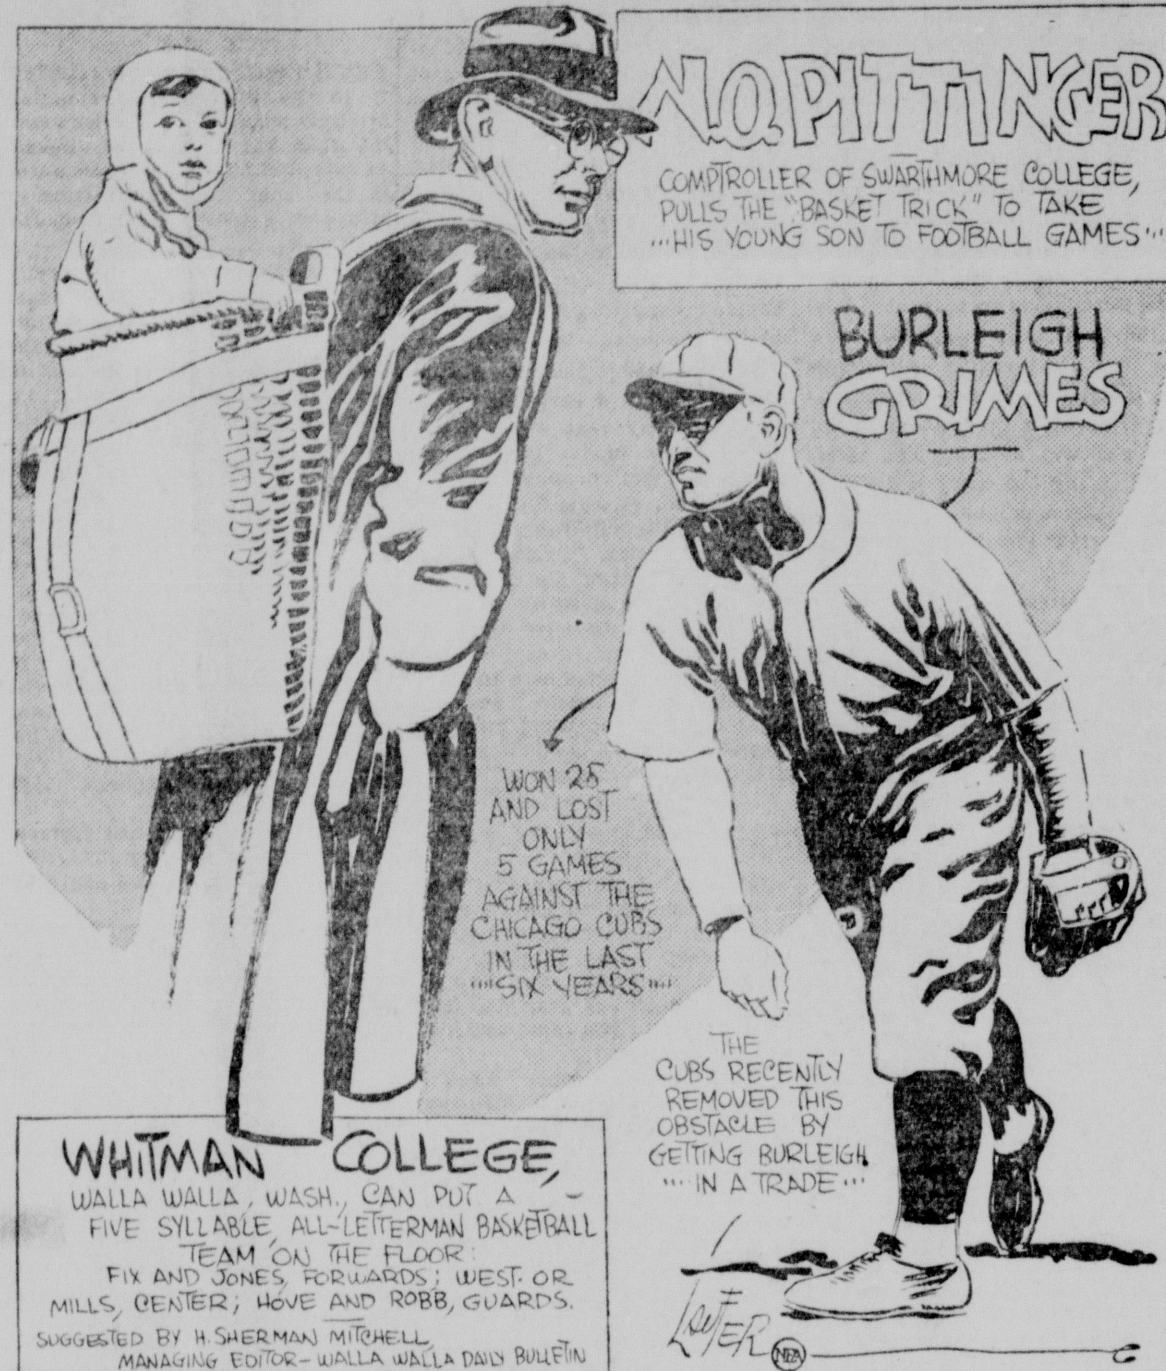

Finally they compromise by adding something like this:

Section 32—Water Wings—Article 1. Players shall not be permitted to wear water wings, helium gas bags or other lifting devices.

Article 2. Hauberks, battle axes

If these meetings were anything like the annual parliaments of the baseball industry, we would expect something like this:

Dean Christian Gauss, owner of the Princeton Tigers, announced today that Princeton will be withdrawn from the Big Three League next year, and that the club will assume a vacant franchise in the Three F's.

Gauss has asked waivers on five linemen and six backs.

The ingeniousness of prize fighters' managers always has been a matter of amazed delight to your correspondent. The happy charm that lies within their letters to the sports editor is a matter of joy to one permitted to read them. Thus in tonight's mail, "and please use Monday and oblige," is the following:

"Lou Brouillard, the new welterweight champion of the world, has made his 1932 resolution and that is to be a fighting champion. It's a noble gesture and will help in the uplift of boxing and help to make the new year one of the best in the business of boxing."

"So in offering there are a couple of fine matches in view for the fans during the early part of the incoming year—the future is what has instilled the spirit of contest in both Petrolle and Townsend and each to perform hard work every day in preparation for their ten-round mill."

It is the future what instills in us a similar spirit of contest and each of us to perform hard work like writing this column each day on our old mill, as we have nicknamed our typewriter.

Courage lads! Only a week now to Col. McLemore's return!

Duck Saving Plan Ready For Action When Congress Is

Washington—Oscar H. Johnson, a game director of South Dakota, a state which formerly ranked high as a nesting area for wild ducks but whose favorable watering places have been reduced an estimated 90 per cent by agriculture, drainage or drought, has informed the American Game Association that his department is now prepared with definite plans for aiding in the restoration of waterfowl as soon as a nationwide program, financed by wild-fowl shooters, has been authorized by Congress.

Backed by a recent national conference of game officials in New York City, a committee of experts is now being selected to decide in what manner waterfowl sportsmen should contribute. The decision of this national committee, which has the pledged support of practically every state and organization, will be presented to Congress as an emergency plan, financed entirely by sportsmen.

"Although there are objections to federal control of what might rightfully be viewed as a state prerogative," Mr. Johnson declared, "I agree that only through a federal agency can an effective restoration program be carried out in view of the tragic waterfowl shortage. For a single state to venture upon a plan of this nature would seem hopeless, since migratory birds produced in one state are enjoyed by the sportsmen of other states as well."

South Dakota's share in a nationwide effort to bring back destroyed waterfowl nesting, resting and feeding areas, as outlined by Mr. Johnson, would involve an expenditure of $500,000 over a five-year period, and would produce in a comparatively short time ten times the number of birds required for home consumption.

The game director will propose that at least 25 nesting refuges in his state, averaging 1,000 acres or more each should be purchased, fenced, planted with fast-growing shrubs and aquatic plants and allowed to revert to native jungles. This land is now of no value other than for the most wild pitches.

Walker pitched the most shutouts, 6. Elliott appeared in the most games, 52 and allowed the most runs, 138. Red Lucas of the Cincinnati Reds pitched the most complete games, 24, and Silas Johnson, also of the Reds, lost the most, 19.

Hallahan, in addition to tying Meinie and Jim Elliott of the Phillies for the most games won, 19, struck out the most batsmen, 159, walked the most, 112, and made the most wild pitches, 11.

Walker pitched the most shutouts, 6. Elliott appeared in the most games, 52 and allowed the most runs, 138. Red Lucas of the Cincinnati Reds pitched the most complete games, 24, and Silas Johnson, also of the Reds, lost the most, 19.

Meinie pitched the most innings, 284, and faced the greatest number of batsmen, 1,202. His teammate Larry French, allowed the most hits, 301. Jack Quinn, ancient Brooklyn hurler, finished the most games, 29, thereby tying the league record set by Lloyd Davies of New York in 1928.

CURE FOR HOLDUPS: San Francisco, Dec. 26.—(UP)—Miss Gussie Brown, blonde candy store clerk, today claimed a sure cure for holdup men. She just sports them.

A Christmas bandit leveled a gun at her and demanded the store's ready currency.

"How dare you, sir—we've never been introduced," Miss Brown remarked and walked away.

The bandit wilted, but followed her, begging for the money.

"Don't be ludicrous, my good man," the girl came back. "This sort of thing just isn't being done."

She said the gunman left.

WEATHER GIVES TULANE'S COACH ADDED WORRIES

Continuous Rain Keeping Green Wave From Practicing

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28.—(AP)—California's weather, dripping wet since Tulane's football team arrived for its Rose Tournament game with the University of Southern California here Friday, today served to lengthen the face of the Greenies' mentor, Bernie Bierman.

Rain last night further dampened Tournament Park, and the forecast called for more rain today, putting a crimp in Bierman's plans for a long, hard workout.

The Green Wave board of strategy had a heavy training schedule mapped out up to Thursday. A wet gridiron is not constructive to concentrated practice efforts.

Not that the Greenies are unused to sodden sod, for ten of their eleven victories this fall were on wet gridirons, but Coach Bierman feels his team needs much work the remainder of this week to get back into his winning stride for the clash with Troy.

The Trojans are unused to muddy going, but with their superior weight and a preference for power drives, a slow field would probably work to their advantage. Only in the California contest, which they won 6 to 0, was the gridiron soggy.

San Francisco, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The western football squad, in training for the annual Shrine east-west charity game here New Year's Day planned to get its first scrimmage today against the Olympic Club team of San Francisco.

The scrimmage, Coaches Loeys and Bible said, would be held if weather permits. The weather bureau forecast was "unsettled."

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Football is feeling a bit low, as it always does at this time of year and the physicians have gathered around to see what can be done about it.

The physicians, coaches, official and college athletic heads, gathered for the annual meetings of the Eastern Football Officials Association, the National Football Coaches Association, and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, already have proposed, informally, a few changes designed to remove some of the hazards of the game.

There has been a widespread demand for rule changes as a result of the nearly 50 deaths charged to football this season.

Most of the suggestions have been designed to remove the dangers of the kickoff and its attendant possibility of the wedge form of interference.

"Rabit punches" by defense linemen have been blamed for some injuries and it has been suggested that the defensive linemen be forbidden to use his hands on the head or neck of a charging rival.

GANDHI ARRIVES IN BOMBAY 'MID SERIOUS RIOTS

His Opponents Attempt To Halt Welcome To Indian Holy Man

Bombay, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Blood ran as Mahatma Gandhi arrived here in India today after his four months' absence at the round table conference in London.

Twelve persons were injured in a clash which took place at the pier where a huge crowd awaited his landing from the S. S. Pilna. About 1,000 "untouchables" carrying black flags had gathered for an anti-Gandhi demonstration and they tried to rush the pier.

Delegations of the National Congress caught the rush of the mob. Police, with the assistance of the Congress adherents, finally dispersed the crowd. The injured included the captain of the Bombay volunteer organization and the secretary of the local organization of the National Congress.

The Mahatma also heard news of serious riots in other parts of India, which have taken 12 lives in the last two days. At Lahore four Hindus and four Moslems were injured today and taken to hospitals. The city was alarmed and a curfew order was issued, compelling all citizens to remain indoors between 8 P. M. and 7 A. M.

Eleven persons were reported killed yesterday at Peshawar where troops fired on a group of anti-British "Red Shirts." A general strike and the closing of shops was proclaimed here today in protest against the arrest of Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the All-India Congress.

Among the first to greet the Mahatma at the pier was his 60-year-old wife. She was followed by the "untouchable" by he adopted some time ago.

Some groups of women admirers placed garlands of flowers around his neck, to the greetings Gandhi remained mute, because his day of silence does not end until noon. He gathered his spinning wheels, his bed, his pots, pans and linens and walked down the gang plank amid a wave of salaams and a thunder of "Long live Mahatma Gandhi, our King."

Main Street in Flooded Mississippi Town

As flood waters of the Tallahatchie river in northeastern Mississippi continued to rise, Webb, Miss., was one of the many towns isolated by high waters. The picture above shows the water-covered main street of the town. Webb, Glendora, Sumner and other communities reported water from four to 10 feet deep, with many residents perched on housetops. More than 300 convicts from the state prison farm at Parchman, Miss., have been released for work on levees in that vicinity.

Scene of Brooklyn Subway Tragedy

Death rode through this Brooklyn, N. Y., subway station. Crowds of shoppers, most of them women, crowded the platform when a work train dashed past and 200-pound wooden ties fell from a flat car into the vestibule. More than 30 were injured, some probably fatally. Here you see officials beginning an investigation soon after the accident.

DEMOCRATS TO GO SLOWLY IN RELIEF WORKS

Will Study Proposed
Home Loan Discount
Banks Carefully

Washington, Dec. 28.—(AP)—House Democrats are going to examine President Hoover's recommendation for 12 Home Loan Discount Banks closely before they give it their legislative blessing.

They approved the debt moratorium in a hurry and right after it the bill to increase the capitalization of the Federal Land Banks by $100,000,000. They have promised to pass the bill for the $500,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation.

After that, however, they expect to pause in rushing through emergency legislation recommended by the President and the Home Loan Discount Banks come in that category.

Opposition to the proposals has grown among the House Democrats. Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said today it and all others recommended by the administration would be closely studied.

Three survivors of the ice tragedy which cost seven lives near Muskegon, Mich., are shown here. Little Gloria Oman, 3, was left an orphan, and Mrs. Martha Erragang lost a son, a daughter, a son-in-law and four grandchildren in the brief minutes after little Orville Oman's sled broke through the ice. The dog after an heroic but futile effort to save the seven who were floundering in the lake, dashed home and attracted Mrs. Erragang to the scene by pulling her skirts.

WORLD CONTRACT BRIDGE CONTEST IN THE MAKING

Eli Culbertson Gets A Challenge From Britshers

New York, Dec. 28.—(UP)—A contract bridge match for the "world's championship" will be played in April between a British team of four players and four Americans selected by Eli Culbertson, it appeared today. Culbertson, now engaged in a 150-rubber match with Sidney S. Lenz, announced he had accepted the challenge of an English committee. He said he would not be a playing member of the American team. Bridge authorities hope the match will be recognized as a world's championship affair.

The American players will be selected from among Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, Waldemar Von Zedtwitz, Theodore A. Lightner, Howard Schenken, Michael Gottlieb and Oswald Jacoby, Culbertson said. The personnel of the British team is not known.

Culbertson will resume his match with Lenz tonight, leading by 17,000 points with the match two-thirds over. His partner will be his wife who has not yet completed playing the 75 rubbers which by agreement she must participate in. Lenz will be teamed with Jacoby.

Several noted players have paired with Culbertson during the match. Last night Culbertson announced that the daughter of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mrs. John A. Warner, will be his partner before the match is completed.

BIG TEN CAGERS TO MEET TEAMS FROM THE EAST

This Will Be Intersectional Week For Several Quintets

Chicago, Dec. 28.—(AP)—This will be intersecational week in Western Conference basketball, seven teams meeting opponents from other parts of the country as final tuneups before the championship season opens next Monday.

Purdue and Minnesota will open the schedule tomorrow night, the Boilermakers entertaining Montana State College's Bobcats at LaFayette and Minnesota meeting Nebraska at Minneapolis.

Illinois, Michigan and Chicago will tackle eastern fives, with the Wolverines carrying the Big Ten standard in the east at Syracuse Saturday. Cornell will become the first eastern team to play at Illinois, coming west for a New Year's Day contest at Champaign, while Chicago will meet Carnegie Tech at Chicago Saturday.

Maryland and Vanderbilt will represent the south. Maryland will meet Wisconsin at Madison Wednesday with the Commodores invading Ohio State Thursday in an effort to accomplish as much in basketball as they did in football last fall when they trimmed the Buckeyes.

The choice strictly Midwest contest will be the second meeting of Norte Dame and Northwestern Thursday. The Irish surprised the Wildcats last week and expect to repeat at Evanston. Carleton College will provide opposition for a pair of Big Ten teams, meeting Chicago Wednesday and Minnesota Saturday. Indiana will meet DePauw at Greencastle, Ind., Saturday in the other game of the Big Ten schedule.

He's Been Asleep Since Oct. 19

Asleep since Oct. 19, Joe Higgins, eight-year-old Memphis, Tenn., boy, is now in the third month of coma. Miss Birdie Sue Tidwell, 19, shown beside him above, has been praying at his bedside daily for the boy's recovery.
Joe seems to rally at times, but is still asleep despite the fact that his eyes are open for hours at a time.

We gaze and muse on life and happenings of this curious world of ours, so full of good and evil, love and bitterness, beauty and ugliness;
this strange world, not so big after all, wherein we dwell awhile and then pass into the unknown.

While on earth we are all neighbors, in a way, and I often wonder why there are so many people who agitate so against those combinations of capital that find the ways of organizing money to employ millions. Capital, corporations, or whatever they may be called, is only the collecting of money into large sums to do what one man cannot do with his money alone. They develop countries, build railroads, manufacturing plants, and a thousand and one things that make us have comforts and conveniences that our forefathers never dreamed of, and in so doing, they make employment for untold millions.

It is indeed astonishing, and to thinking people more than a little dismaying, that in these days when people never tire of congratulating themselves on their rational, inbanishment of prejudices and detestation of quarrels that so many people who are anti-corporation and capital, anti-everything that has money to employ labor and buy materials and who can do the most to bring back normal times, still agitate here and there and try to make them
the butt of bitter criticism.

Some of them in the past may have done something to deserve this treatment, but at the present they seem to be a ready-at-hand target for those whose minds are in a damaging vein. Even some politicians talk in a ridiculous manner of their complicity in world wide plots and credit them with a kind of combination of cunning nefariousness worthy of the middle ages.

What we need is a smaller crop of politicians, a larger crop of business boosters, more minds working on plans of development and progress, more men to get their money together and put it to work to employ more people, as it is only through steady employment and good wages that it is possible for people to have money to spend. When people have plenty to spend, everybody is in better shape and prosperity and happiness are with us.

5,500 MILES OF ROAD IN STATE

Raleigh, N. C. (UPI)—There are more than 55,000 miles of road in the North Carolina State highway system a result of the state taking over maintenance of 45,000 miles of county roads under act of the 1931 Legislature.

Between the years 1690 and 1720
there were more than 2000 pirates afloat off the United States coast between Maine and Florida, and their toll from shipping ran into millions every year.

The world's fastest growing plant is said to be a fungus native to Hawaii. It increases in size so rapidly that it grows in size so rapidly that it grows in size so rapidly that it grows in size so

THE OLD
COUNSELLOR'S
COLUMN

The National Credit Corporation
Article II.

In my first article, I told you how credit has been restricted in many communities. At the same time, most banks have been faced with the problem of maintaining abnormal liquidity in order to meet fully and promptly the demands of de-positors.

That situation has forced many banks to sell sound securities on depressed markets at much below their intrinsic value. This has increased the volume of so-called "distress selling" of securities by individuals and corporations whose need for cash transcended other considerations. Anything done to prevent the sale of securities would strengthen the security markets. Not only would banks benefit, but all individual holders of securities as well.

Moreover, if banks are under less pressure to liquidate sound assets, they in turn can give more assistance to borrowing customers, and thus relieve them of the necessity of sacrificing securities.

Quite obviously there was a need for some central source of credit where banks with sound but slow assets could borrow funds by putting up such assets as collateral. The Federal Reserve Banks rediscount only certain types of highly liquid negotiable paper. There was need for still further facilities to create greater mobility to the nation's credit to supplement the facilities of the Federal Reserve System. The creation of the National Credit Corporation was a natural consequence of this need.

Briefly, and avoiding technicalities, here is how the National Credit Corporation is organized. At the top, it is governed by a board of twelve directors, one from each Federal Reserve District. The Corporation can obtain up to a billion dollars through the issuance of gold debentures. These debentures are sold to any bank which wishes to become a member of the Corporation.
Such banks must subscribe in cash or its equivalent up to two per cent of their net time and demand deposits, or up to ten per cent of their capital and surplus, whichever is less. The debentures may be used as collateral by the banks to secure United States Government deposits, and they may earn interest up to six per cent. Liability is limited to the amount of the subscriptions, and any losses are absorbed pro rata.

The member, or subscriber, banks are organized into local associations.
At the head of each association is a loan committee selected by the members of the local association. This committee acts on all loan applications to the National Credit Corporation made by member banks in its particular territory. The local association is responsible for all such loans.

The structure, you see, is really quite simple. In the next article, I will tell how the National Credit Corporation operates.

now so impoverished that Anne's and Cecily's earnings support the household. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandparents are known as "GRAND-PAPA" and "GRAND-MAMA" and they live on a small farm in the country.

Anne, 28, and Cecily, 22, do extraordinary work and Mary-Frances, 15, is still in school. When the money comes Anne has been engaged to PHILIP FERRIS, young Cecily to RALPH MCKEE, and Mary-Frances to a young man named John. They are all very much interested in the future of the family.

Next morning Phil telephoned Anne and Cecily to take her down town to his car.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVII

ALMOST at once, before he had turned the car from the tree lined driveway into the street, Phil said, "Ann, when are we going to be married?"

Ann, still too happy to be bothered, said, "Oh, Phil!" and patted his arm.

"I mean it," he insisted. "When?"
"Oh, Phil," Ann responded, but less happily.

"Ever?"
"Now, dear," she reproached, with no happiness at all.

"Seriously, Ann, I was thinking last night. What are we waiting for? For your grandparents to die?"
"How can you?" Ann protested.

"That is a terrible thing to say."
"Not at all. We all die. Why evade the statement? But with the care Mr. and Mrs. Fenwick take of themselves they may live for 10—20 years yet. You and I are almost 30 years old. Twenty or 10 years from now would make a late beginning for us, wouldn't it?"

"I don't know why you want to act like this this morning," Ann said, and added, "I was so happy."
"Yes, dear, but don't you see—"
"No. Not this morning. I was so happy."

"Why should facing a fact make you unhappy?"
"I don't know. But it does. Talking about people dying and so on I'd felt that we were making sort of a fresh start this morning—maybe."

"We are, dear," he told her. "That is what I want to do. I want to make a fresh start toward some definite goal. I want to get out and get you out of this atmosphere of starchy, vague, sentimental optimism. I'm sorry if I shocked you or hurt you by talking about the death of your grandparents. It wasn't necessary for me to say that, because that isn't what we are waiting for—is it? At least, I hope it isn't. Still, there must be a point somewhere that we can place and say, 'When that happens we can marry. I want to see if we can place that point.'

Ann sighed and shook her head
a little.

"Suppose," Phil went on, "that we say we are waiting until I can make enough money to contribute the same amount that you are now paying in to the household. That would mean an extra hundred a month wouldn't it? And that isn't impossible, is it?"

"No," said Ann. "Yes," said Ann.
"Meaning?" he questioned pardon-ably.

"What I send to mother is considered as a part of my own present living expenses. I'll have to be sure of enough, over and above my living expenses, to take care of your part of the expenses in your household. When I reach that point shall we say, we can be married and will be?"

"There'd be two of us then," she said. "Now you have only your own expenses. Besides, it isn't just the money, you know."

"I knew you'd say that. If I had an extra hundred a month right now you wouldn't marry me, would you?"

"You aren't fair, Phil. You just aren't fair. How could I go off and leave Cecily with the entire responsibility of the house and Grand and Rosalie and Mary-Frances? You know as well as I do that the only way in the world Cecily and I manage to keep going at all—to have any good times, or leisure, or to keep our jobs, for that matter—is by taking turns with the work and sharing it and the responsibilities.
Suppose Cecily had been alone last winter when Grand was ill? As it is, with the two of us working as hard as we can, things get away ahead of us."

"Just keeping that big house, and getting the meals, and doing the ironing from the wet wash, and everything, is a full-sized job for one person. Cecily couldn't take that all over and keep her office position. She isn't strong enough.
No one woman would be. And she is so young. You used to say one reason you loved me was because I had a sense of honor and fairness, but you don't seem to feel that way
any more."

"Yes, I do. That's that, then. A hundred isn't sufficient. How much shall we have to add to the hun-red to get a competent woman to do the housework?"

"I don't know."
"Fifty dollars? Sixty? Another hundred?"

Ann looked out of the window
"I was so happy," she said.
"Why were you, Ann?"
"I don't know. I can't imagine."
"Because you were being fair to Cecily?"

"You have no right to blame Cecily for everything."
"I'm not blaming Cecily for anything. I'm not really blaming you, either, Ann, for thinking always about being fair to Cecily and never thinking about being fair to me."

"That isn't true."
Phil shrugged. "Isn't it? Well, where were we? An extra hundred a month on top of the first hundred? Two hundred, then, more than I am making now—or the interest on $40,000—and we can be married?"

"I won't talk that way! You—you're loving me, not buying me and my family isn't looking for some outsider to support them, and we don't want charity."

"Outsider is right," said Phil.
"Calling me in and pretending you wanted to take me to the office, and wanted to see me, and so sweet,
and—and—all you wanted was to quarrel and quarrel and worry me and make me unhappy."

"No, Ann. I am very tired of quarrelling."
"Well, you always start it, just the same."

"If that is true, I am sorry," he said with no trace of penitence.
"If you loved me, you'd wish to help me and make me happy and not worry me. If you loved me—"
"I shouldn't wish to marry you?
I'd be content to wait and wait, as we have been waiting, year after year, until were both old and worn out and have no hope of establishing a family of our own nor a life of our own? Cecily will marry one of these fine days. I shan't blame her; but I tell you, she will
And then where shall we be? Sink deeper than we are now, if that's possible. We aren't children, Ann, nor morons. We have to think of some way out of this. Soon. We'll work it out together, dear. Will you go with me in that? Will you try to find some way out for us?
I've waited, you know; and I can wait. But I am through and fed up with this waiting pointlessly—and less."

Ann said, "What has happened to make you get this way—just this morning?"
"I have been this way," he answered, "for eight years."

"Oh, no, you haven't. You weren't even through school eight years ago. You speak as if you were the only one who had waited. I've been waiting, too. As long as it was I, waiting for you, everything was all right."

"Fair enough," he accepted. "But for the past three years, at least—and it is more like four—I've been making plenty of money for the two of us to live on—carefully, but not meanly. I am only 30 years old—"

"A minute ago 30 was old and worn out."
"—and not so many men of 30, who have had no outside help at all, could marry, support their mothers, and keep another large family besides."

ANN looked at him. They had stopped at a red signal light, so he could look at her.

"No, Ann," he said quickly. "It is only that you put me on the defensive. I didn't say I was supporting your family, nor that I'd be allowed to do so. I said that I couldn't, and that not many men of my age could—and that is all I did say."

"Not quite all. You said that I was old and worn out, and that you were tired of waiting for me and fed up with it and wouldn't wait any longer."

The green light glowed, and the bell rang. Phil shot the car ahead too fast. They whizzed by the next corner and the next. At the third corner Ann said, "Didn't you?"
"I didn't, and you know I didn't.
If you loved me you'd be as eager as I am to find

ECONOMY SAVED GOVERNMENT OF STATE BIG SUM

Gov. Emmerson Reviews Accomplishments Of Administration

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Economy in state government which this year turned back into the state treasury a total of $6,031,511 will be continued throughout 1932, Governor Louis L. Emmerson said in reviewing the accomplishments of his administration in 1931 and indicating the course he would pursue in the new year.

He revealed his disappointment in the special session of the General Assembly, expressed hope that after recess next month the lawmakers would achieve "tangible and worthwhile results."

He called attention to the fact that the tax rate for 1932 will remain the same as last year, and then also that conditions today are in part due to the voters' failure to pass the revenue amendment to the constitution which he urged. In part, his statement was as follows: "During the year, the sincere efforts of this administration to adhere to the principles of business management and economy have produced tangible results. A little more than two months ago, there was a total of $6,031,511 of monies appropriated to the executive departments but unexpended by them."

"Of this $6,031,511, which is equal to about one-fifth of the amount of revenue derived annually by the state from the general property tax, more than a million dollars represented unexpended appropriations for salaries. The remainder was saved from other appropriation accounts."

"Only through the loyal co-operation of the department heads and their employes, has the administration been able to make this excellent showing in saving the taxpayers' money. Each department, without a single exception, contributed to the saving."

Continued economy in the executive branch for another two years is assured, and the state tax rate for 1932 will remain the same as it was in 1931. It is true that this rate will not produce as much revenue in 1932 as it did in 1931, due to decreased property valuations, but I am determined to hold the executive departments within the revenue that the rate will produce, and endeavor, at the same time, to make other substantial savings."

"Revenue is inextricably woven with taxation. Since becoming governor, I have attempted to relieve real estate of the unjust burden of the cost of government, which now, under present business conditions, is proving virtually confiscatory. One of the first moves I made was to make possible the submission to the voters of a proposal to amend the revenue section of the constitution."

"Unfortunately, the proposed amendment failed to receive the approval of the voters because it did not have the support of organizations which should have been for it. Consequently, the tax situation continued to grow steadily worse until it became necessary to call the legislature into special session to solve the revenue problems of Chicago and Cook county, as well as some other counties in the state, and to protect the state's credit."

For six weeks the legislature has met. It has accomplished little. The sections of the state most vitally concerned in the relief program, seem unable to agree among themselves. It is their problem, primarily, and they should work together to solve it. I am hopeful that some tangible and worthwhile results will be achieved when the legislature returns January 5th from its holiday recess."

"There have been many accomplishments in the executive branch during the past year that are worthy of note, but perhaps the most outstanding of them is the achievement of the Department of Public Welfare. In this department, the opportunity for constructive service was greater, perhaps, than in any other department and those in charge have made the most of it."

"By determining a set policy, by business-like methods and rigid economy, the per capita cost of operating this department, which cares for the 43,000 wards of the state, was reduced from $347.55 in 1929 to $309.14 in 1931, thereby affecting a saving of approximately $1,500,000."

"While it is true that a part of this saving resulted from the decrease in the cost of foodstuffs and clothing, it was offset by personnel for new service and new wards. The principal part of the reduction should be credited to the application of business principles, and strict economy."

"Another notable achievement of the department was the completion during the year, of the $10,500,000 building program of the 1929 legislature, which provided a total of 8,000 more beds."

"Thus, the department was enabled to thin out the congestion that prevailed in January, 1929, when thousands of the state wards were sleeping on floors."

"Unemployment has been one of the serious problems that have confronted the administration. Realizing that the citizens of Illinois desired work, not charity, there was organized at my suggestion in the fall of 1930, a group of business men to direct the task of raising funds and administering relief in Cook county and the state as a whole."

"In addition, the employees of the executive branch were called upon to contribute one day's pay for four months of 1930, and a day's pay for six months in 1931-1932."

MULDOON—'Grand Old Man' of Sports

WILLIAM MULDOON, the man who was wrestling champion half a century ago, is reported dangerously ill in New York City.

Muldoon was a policeman, Civil War soldier, member of the New York Boxing Commission and was interested in many other political and social activities up to the time of his physical collapse.

At the age of 86, he followed unwaveringly the ideal of physical health that he had taken up more than half a century ago when he be-winter of 1930-31. This winter the need is even greater, and greater effort is being made to meet it. Already, the Governor's Commission for Unemployment Relief in Cook county, has raised more than $10,000,000. Those in charge have stated that more money will be required before the winter is over, and I am certain some method will be found to obtain it without resorting to dole legislation.

"In unemployment relief, the state itself has played no small role. Through its institutional and road building activities, it has provided and will provide employment to thousands of men. Even now several hundreds of men are employed by the state highway department in preparing grades for paving in the near future. State road work is the best unemployment insurance we have."

"Road construction in 1931 proceeded at a rapid rate despite the delay resulting from the prevailing wage scale legislation." On December 1, 1931, there had been completed 1,399 miles of pavement on the state bond issue and state aid systems. Of this total mileage, 761 miles were on the state bond issue system; 638 miles on the state aid system, and 1,025 miles of the two systems were of rigid type construction. The remainder, 374 miles, was gravel and macadam. In addition to the pavement, 231 miles of grading and 223 bridges were completed.

"The amount of road work done in 1931 would have been considerably greater had it not been for the fact that approximately 90 days of the best part of the construction season was lost due to the controversy in which the prevailing wage scale law became entangled."

First, protests filed under provisions of the law, delayed the letting of highway contracts during the months of July and August. Those contracts totaled $11,000,000. Then, when the state supreme court held the law invalid, all contracts that had been awarded between July 1 and October 20 were avoided. As a result, these $11,000,000 worth of contracts had to be relet.

"With the question of the law's validity determined, the highway department immediately began letting contracts under the old law. Since Oct. 20, a total of 427 miles of pavement, 106 miles of grading and 78 sections of bridge work have been advertised for letting, and contracts have been awarded for 231 miles of pavement, 74 miles of grading, and 43 bridge sections. The department will continue to let contracts throughout the winter so that the constructive program for 1932 can get underway as soon as the weather permits."

"The intention of the department is, as a measure of unemployment relief, to start work as near simultaneously as possible on the projects in the 1932 road program. There will be approximately $25,400,000 from road funds available for 1932 construction. In addition, there will be carried over from 1931 contracts totaling approximately $17,000,000, making the total estimated expenditures for road construction in 1932 approximately $42,400,000. This program will provide employment to an estimated 30,000 to 35,000 men."

Opera Broadcasts To Be Continued

New York Dec. 26.—(UP)—Continuation of opera broadcasts was assured today with the enthusiastic reception accorded the Metropolitan's first full presentation of an opera by radio.

The Christmas broadcast of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" was hailed by opera stars, famous musicians and critics as highly successful. Millions of persons listed in as a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Company carried the opera to audiences of more than 100 stations.

Short wave transmitters carried the opera to foreign lands, even spanning the Pacific to Japan. A dispatch from London reported persons there did not have a chance to hear it as no provisions were made for re-broadcasting. It also was indicated that the opera was not reproduced in Berlin.

force. Stories were told of how Muldoon used to belabor Sullivan with a baseball bat after Sullivan had broken training.

Muldoon was unyielding in principle, a trait that earned him the title of the "Iron Duke" when he was chairman of the boxing commission. He maintained almost bitterly that three was no heavyweight champion of the world at this time because Schmeling won the title on a foul from Jack Sharkey.
